Describe below the reviews and reviewers of the accounts. For reviews, include their frequency, different levels, and triggering factors. For reviewers, include the number of reviewers, their titles and functions, instructions they receive from applicant on performing reviews, and number of accounts assigned each.

Lee Wenzel is the only reviewer. The frequency of each review and the nature of each review is dependent upon the screens and tactics deployed for the portfolio. Many have a daily review, especially if alerts have been set. Most have a weekly review. The review consists of reviewing technical chart patterns, company and market events, status of the security with the recommending source (if any), client tax considerations, and the initial risk and timing requirements defined with the client.

Securities are bought based upon the merits of the strategy they embody. Securities are sometimes sold when the individual security is failing, sometimes when a stock is merely vulnerable such as after very rapid gains, sometimes when a stock has become a disproportionate percentage of a portfolio, and sometimes when the strategy the stock represents is being replaced.

- B. Describe below the nature and frequency of regular reports to clients on their accounts.

Since clients retain custody of all accounts under management, they have continuous access to reports through Internet access to their custodian brokerage.

In addition, Wenzel Analytics sends quarterly reports. The reports consist of graphs and explanatory text, with a table of positions by strategy, number of shares, value and percentage of assets under management. The graphs show cost, value and performance relative to benchmarks for various time periods and various strategies as well as the overall account. Strategy performance for all Wenzel Analytics accounts also allows the client to see their performance relative to performance for all accounts under management, and possibly choose to change strategies or alter allocations between strategies.

Ad hoc reports, often consisting of e-mails and attached charts, are sent out during the quarter as questions arise, decisions need to be made, or unusual events occur.
